

A Chinese Gem

Chinese philosophies are frequently rich in wisdom and truth. They carry principles that apply to people and nations, regardless of the century in which we may be living. One that requires our attention, in this day and age, is:

“If there is righteousness in the heart, there will be duty in the character. If there is duty in the character, there will be harmony in the home. If there is harmony in the home, there will be order in the nation. When there is order in the nation, there will be peace in the world.”

That philosophy is simple and straightforward, and yet it is rich in precept. If each of us could live by its instruction, what a wonderful world we would have.

Certainly, in its narrower application, it offers a formula for success in each of the centers of Life Care and American Lifestyles and in the work of Life Care at Home.

Righteousness and duty are not only qualities that are much admired, but they become keystones for success – in both personal and professional settings.
