

From Blot to Beauty

An artist went to visit a dear friend. When he arrived, she was weeping. He asked why.

She showed him a handkerchief of exquisite beauty that had great sentimental value. It had been ruined by a drop of indelible ink.

The artist asked her to let him have the handkerchief, which he returned to her by mail several days later. When she opened the package, she could hardly believe her eyes.

The artist, using the inkblot as a base, had drawn on the handkerchief a design of great beauty with India ink. Now it was more beautiful and more valuable than ever.

That story is instructive for us.

Sometimes, the tragedies that break our hearts can become the basis for a more beautiful design in our lives. Be patient with the hurts over which you have no control. They may become a source of healing, help, and beauty – for you or for someone else, because of your experience.

– Beecher Hunter