

Listen to the World

Have you ever listened to the world in the early morning hours?

Really listened?

Dawn is a time of day that can stir the soul in a manner like nothing else.

If you listen closely, you can hear ...

- The stillness of the hour. It is a peaceful moment, whispering that nature is at peace.
- The gentle rush of an itinerant breeze through the pines and cedars and white oak trees. It is as if the breath of God Himself assures of His presence.
- The warble of a mockingbird, practicing his song for a mid-afternoon concert.
- As the minutes pass, slowly the hum in the distance of traffic begins to build as mankind prepares for another day of labor. It is a reminder of the potential for accomplishment that rests within the hands of man. It is the day that God has made, and it is His gift to us.

Listen to the world in the morning.

It speaks a beautiful language.

– Beecher Hunter