

Prayer of a Little Girl

Do you understand the influence for good you can exert? I tell all the associates who attend the Life Care Journey that to be a good servant leader, one of the qualities is to be an example.

Perhaps you may be prone to think from time to time that you are rather insignificant in your corner of the world, and that your actions receive little notice. Au contraire!

Let me give you an example – a story I heard that is sweet, and significant.

A little girl was about to undergo an operation. The surgeon explained that before he could make her well, he would have to put her to sleep.

“All right,” said the little girl, “but first I have to say my prayers.”

Then she began, “Now I lay me down to sleep ...”

The surgery went well.

But that night, the surgeon got down on his knees and prayed for the first time in 35 years.

Just a little girl ... in the hands of an important physician.

But her influence was profound.

– Beecher Hunter

