

Saving a Life on the Road

Steven (Layzie Bone) Howse – a famous hip-hop artist with the Grammy award-winning, multiplatinum band Bone Thugs-n-Harmony – was driving through Wyoming in 2015 on the way to a concert to promote his new album Perfect Timing, when out of nowhere a car came careening toward him.

“He went from one side of the road to the other side of the road, left, right, left, right, and a quarter mile up, oncoming traffic was coming, so you know we were screaming; we were scared for him,” Bone said.

The car narrowly missed several vehicles before spinning out and coming to a stop right in front of Bone’s car.

He and other witnesses, sure that they would find evidence of alcohol or drugs, rushed to the vehicle to see if they could help. What they found was a man incoherently babbling with no smell of alcohol on his breath, and no evidence of any in the car. It didn’t take long for them to come to the conclusion that this was possibly come kind of blood-sugar issue.

Bone quickly ran to his car and fetched fruit and chocolate that he was carrying as road snacks. He began frantically feeding the man, helping to stabilize his blood sugar until paramedics could arrive.

So what did the Perfect Timing rapper have to say about his efforts? “I guess I was in the right place at the right time to be of some assistance.”

Quick thinking, a little preparedness and a willingness to respond were all it took for Layzie Bone to save a life.

Are you ready and willing to do the same as God presents you with opportunities to make a difference in the life of another – maybe even a complete stranger?

That’s a rhetorical question, because the men and women who have signed on to work at Life Care and Century Park have done so – in the main – because they want to impact the lives of others in a positive way, to make a difference, and it is reflected in both their personal and professional lives.

Physically and spiritually needy people are all around us. We are in the “right place at the right time,” and what is required is quick thinking, preparedness and a willingness to respond.

Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God (Hebrews 13:16 ESV).
