

The Flower Show

A young woman became interested in flower arranging and entered some of her work in the local flower show. She didn't win anything, and she asked one of the judges if he could point out where she had gone wrong.

He told her to come back the next day, and when she did, he handed her three envelopes.

"The next time you do an arrangement," he said, "open these one at a time."

A week later, she made up another arrangement and opened the first envelope. It read, "Take out half the flowers and rearrange the rest."

The second envelope carried the same message. So did the third.

She followed the instructions and entered the arrangement in another show. This time, she won first prize.

The lesson? No matter what you are doing, don't get complicated about it. Keep it simple.

No matter what job we may have in Life Care, Century Park or Life Care at Home, that's a pretty good rule to follow.

– Beecher Hunter