

The Man Who Slept Late

A man who habitually slept as long as he could every morning awoke one day even later than usual.

Looking at the clock, he bolted out of bed, threw on some clothes, splashed cold water on his face, quickly combed his hair, gulped down a glass of milk, grabbed his briefcase, gave his wife a kiss as he ran out the door, and raced to catch the bus.

He barely got on it as it began to pull away. Dropping a coin in the meter, he lurched down the aisle toward a seat. Suddenly he looked around and breathlessly blurted out, "Where's this bus going anyway?"

Do you know some people like that? Taken up with the rush of everyday activities, they neglect to make sure they are headed in the right direction.

Many people are making good time, but they are going the wrong way.

The answer, of course, is to surrender our lives to God, trust His Son, and let Him take control.

If so, we will be on the right road in this life, with a reward in the eternity to come.

Most of the associates of Life Care, Century Park and Life Care at Home have figured this out: We serve God by taking care of His children.

Such duty brings a life of personal peace, contentment and fulfillment.

– Beecher Hunter

