

The Rummage Sale

Heading into the weekend, how about another look at some bloopers in church signs and bulletins? As one who labored in the print industry for years, I can have some empathy for writers who fall victim to typographical errors or sentence misconstruction that leaves an entirely different meaning from what was intended. But they can make interesting reading, such as ...

- Ladies, don't forget the rummage sale. It is a good chance to get rid of those things not worth keeping around the house. Bring your husbands.
- There is joy in heaven over one singer who repents.
- The ladies of the church have cast off clothing of every kind, and they can be seen in the church basement on Friday afternoon.
- Attend and you will hear an excellent speaker and heave a healthy lunch.
- The peacemaking meeting scheduled for today has been canceled due to a conflict.
- Hymn No. 58 – “Gold Will Take Care of You.”
- Today's Sermon: How Much Can a Man Drink? With Hymns from a Full Choir.
- The church will host an evening of fine dining, superb entertainment, and gracious hostility.
- The “Over 60s Choir” will be disbanded for the summer with the thanks of the entire church.
- The soloist sang, “I Will Not Pass This Way Again,” giving obvious pleasure to the congregation.
- Potluck dinner Sunday at 5:00 p.m. Prayer and medication to follow.

Well, that's enough for now, while I seek to add more to my collection.

And I know, I know. You're going to be studying your church bulletin a little more carefully this weekend.
