

The Wit of Church Marquees

When traveling, and time allows, Lola and I prefer to get off the busy interstates, drive through the farms and forests of the countryside, and cruise into the towns and villages occupied by people you would agree are the salt of the earth.

One of the delights of such trips is to read the wit and wisdom showing up on church marquees. It has been a while since we featured some, but check these out:

- The fact that there's a highway to hell and only a stairway to heaven says a lot about anticipated traffic numbers.
- Which section would you prefer in the afterlife – smoking or non-smoking?
- Be kind whenever possible. Here's a tip: it's always possible.
- Do you spend your time with God's book or Facebook?
- Tweet others as you want to be tweeted.
- God recycles. He made you from dust.
- When you throw mud at someone, U lose ground.
- Lord, help us to be the people our dogs think we are.
- You have one new friend request: from Jesus.
- Adam and Eve: The first people to not read the Apple terms and conditions.
- Church parking only. Violators will be baptized.
- Body piercing saved our souls.
- God didn't create anything without purpose, but mosquitoes do come close!
- If your life stinks, we have a pew for you.
- Prayer: The original wireless connection.
- Practice thanking God for more than elastic waistbands.

Well, that's enough for now. I trust a few of these tickled your funny bone. And perhaps a few triggered some solemn reflection.

Then our mouth was filled with laughter, and our tongue with shouts of joy; then they said among the nations, "The Lord has done great things for them" (Psalm 126:2 ESV).
