

Unforgettable Words

As part of a marketing campaign to attract subscribers, National Geographic magazine produced a remarkable brochure called Ten Pictures You'll Never Forget.

Included in the pamphlet were photographs such as Buzz Aldrin on the moon, Mount St. Helens erupting, a Brazilian jaguar sprawled across a tree branch, and a cherubic Russian schoolgirl signaling her age.

As one gazes at this brochure, called to remembrance is the lesson that these 10 unforgettable scenes are possible only because of 10 unforgettable words, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth" (Genesis 1:1).

In this age of sophisticated sciences, we can be influenced to miss this key point because so much of what we read assumes a godless origin of this world. We must remind ourselves that God made the moon, mountains, jaguars and pretty little girls (as well as freckle-faced boys).

Just 10 words. Don't forget them. They are the foundation of all the beauty and majesty of the universe.

The worlds were framed by the word of God. Hebrews 11:3

--Beecher Hunter